Not all of the times of your life will be it: a lot of time goes into the normal with life: waking up, showering, making coffee; going to class, studying; seeing the required speaker for your times that really live on in our memories, however, are the times that never really meant that much in a formal sense: The first college party. The realization that quarters are a gift from the laundry god. The college date. The homecoming game where you tried to hide your drunk friends from your parents. The homecoming game where you tried to hide your drunk self from adventure; the breathless escapes dances, the visiting entertainers, grill-just sitting down and having a long met. These things are the moments that make college worth something; regardless of the knowledge (which, really, you could learn anywhere, with enough effort) you learned, and the time you spent cramming, it is the personal experience that made it all worthwhile. And so while this time is yet another mass production of just another University...

it has been to live in the few short May 1999, here in the hidden heart here in that place which we have University. These are the lives of the laughed, loved and learned, and to

"I love Butler because it's a small school in a big city. You get the best of both worlds."

-- Laurie Bowman

"What I like most about Butler is the size. The fact that I can put a face to names makes the school feel like a more personable place. Being so far from home and seeing a smiling face of a stranger makes me happy."

-- Elizabeth Miyashiro

"Butler has a beautiful campus and I love the atmosphere. It is the perfect size for me, not too small, but not too big. The only problem I see with Butler is that I may have had too good of a time."

-- Chris Broshears

"I love Derby Days because whether you are at the cook-out, volleyball tournament, queen contest, or the party you are bound to have a good time."

-- Allison Lightner

 At the Lambert CC "Apt. Watermelon" event, students are challenged to eat hundreds of watermelons.

Really, this is harder than it looks. I tried to eat a watermelon at the event, but I couldn't finish it. It was so hard to eat, and I was so thirsty. I had to stop after a few minutes. I was so tired and thirsty. I had to stop after a few minutes. I was so tired and thirsty. I had to stop after a few minutes. I was so tired and thirsty.

Commuters

Although commuters live off-campus, they still make a difference on campus.

Commuters are more independent; they do not rely on Aramark for food or someone else to clean their house, they rely on themselves. On this page are photos that capture some commuters in action and some of the problems they face on campus.

Green gold for Butler

Although there is room for a car to park, there is no asphalt to house that car during the day. BL PD prides itself in giving parking tickets to those cars who must park on campus to go to class or their homes, but do not have a parking spot to park in. With the numerous parking tickets seen on windshields every day, let's hope that Butler spends this money on new parking spaces (that may just be too logical, though)

The Founding of Sigma Gamma Rho

In the 1920's Sigma Gamma Rho Inc. was not only lacking in an actual Greek house, but in dorm space. Back then, blacks were not allowed to live in the dorms. However, despite the racist views of the time, seven young women, who were attending Butler University while working on their Masters' degrees, founded Sigma Gamma Rho. Their sorority became incorporated on November 12, 1922.

Mary Lou Little, Nan Johnson, Dorothy Whiteside, Hattie Redford, Cubena McClure, Bessie Martin, and Vivian Marbury were seven best friends with a unique goal of founding their very own sorority. The ideals of this sorority would be sisterhood, scholarship, and service. Vivian Marbury, who practiced those three ideals in 1922, is still living today and resides in Indianapolis.

In 1999, Sigma Gamma Rho Inc. has 10 members on Butler's campus. All are African American, however Sigma Gamma Rho does accept members of all races. Current members are as listed: Delia Askew - Basileus (President); Nicole Thompson - Anti-Basileus (Vice President); Angela Allen - Anti- Grammateus (Secretary); Tanika Scott - Tamiochus (Treasurer); Allison Pulliam - Epistoleus (Historian); Kendra Vinson - Parliamentarian; Kim Stephenson - Member; Veronica Newman - Member; Veronica Newman - Member.

Sigma Gamma Rho's national philanthropy is the March of Dimes. This spring the members sold cardboard baby shoes which were hung on a bulletin board in Jordan Hall. They also had a fund-raiser called Operation Big Book Bag. For this project the girls collected school supplies for kids. In return, Butler students got to attend an ice cream cake social.

President Delia Askew, said that "being the Alpha chapter pushes me to encourage everyone else to stay involved with service and scholarship. We have to represent! Since we are the Alpha chapter more is expected. We are always trying to get a lot of people from campus involved with our programs."

Some of these activities include Pokeno night, movie nights, Spring Sports, Greek Olympics, and step shows at the REACH Ethnic Festival. The Alpha chapter has also had many programming events that have earned the title "first annual." For example they have held the Mr. Sigma Gamma Rho contest, and their first scholarship ball, which is called the Blue and Gold Ball.

Many of our girls are Resident Assistants or in Hall Government. Sigma Gamma Rho's are also involved in CPA, SGA, Program Board, and REACH. However Askew said "We are not just involved in the sorority, we are involved all over the community. The women of Sigma Gamma Rho have participated in programs such as Girls Inc. after school program and Golden Achievement Program which was started by Sheronn Burrow.

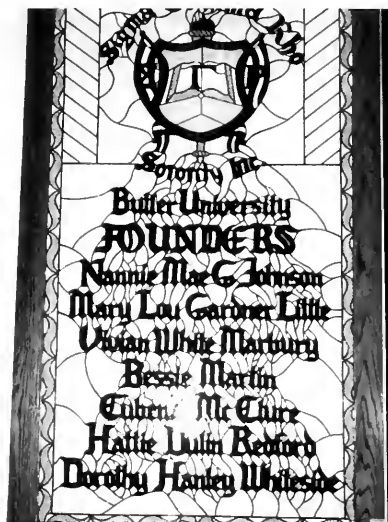

Kim Stephenson said, "Sisterhood, scholarship, and service is what we're all about. We step together. We take road trips together. We have a lot of fun together. But we're more than just a social sorority. We were founded on community service. Greater service, greater progress!"

Greek Olympics was a positive way to bring houses together because the competitions weren't cut-throat," explained Karen Sells (Kappa Alpha Theta), seen here readying herself against her Delta Gamma opponent Kelly Shneider. "... It helped that everyone had a sense of humor about the competitions."

Although fashionably unattractive, Pharmacy students endure through even more agony as they are forced to wear paper blue aprons and big white chef hats to keep nasty viruses away. These two combined, are commonly known as: scrubs. We don't want no scrubs.

Like Folgers' Crystals, AnnaLissa Abad eyes her supervisor as she secretly replaces a heart patient's medication with prescription medicine for a constipated patient, and all just for kicks. Those pharmacy practical jokesters! The ol' pharmacy switch-a-roo.

Where does all of our tuition money go? Pharmacy students often ask this question while fighting to stay in the Pharmacy school. Well, pretty glass windows do not pay for themselves (CBA students would accept this as fact as they have extremely pretty windows in their new building).

From top) Ms. Martin arrives at work at 7:45 after getting up at 6:00; Sitting at a desk working out an efficient schedule for the day; One of the students (a fifth-grader in this instance) practices on his recorder; Ms. Martin uses techniques that engage the interest of the younger students, teaching such basic concepts as rhythm and pitch.

The average college student is very aware of the fact that the world of college is not the world outside; days of drinking, sleeping in, and choosing one's schedule at whim gives way to waking early, watching time with an eagle eye, and juggling a social life with a professional one. The DRIFT staff chose to examine this alleged "real world" by following those that inhabit it; the Butler alum chosen was Polly Martin.

Polly is a Butler graduate of just a year past. With the days of college behind, she has chosen to exercise her skills in music education at a 'small-town' elementary school, South Elementary of South Madison Community School Corp. This close-feeling school, however, hosts over 1,000 children; 'Ms. Martin', as the children call her, teaches 500 of them once over the course of every three days.

Though the days are very different from those that college brought, Polly has no regrets about moving on. "I get a lot of satisfaction in seeing the kids progress with their accomplishments."

Spring Break

Spring Break 1999 was no different than spring breaks from year's past. The destinations were the same, but still the time and money was well spent. The most important aspect of Spring Break is the time to get away from the daily stress of Butler and the world around us. A time to relax in the sun or in the shade or a time to assist those in need. A time to live one's life worry-free and indulge in the amazing wonders of the world.

Love & Relationships @ Butler

Couple: Jeff Micek & Kristi O'Brien

First date: I went to the movies to see Aladdin with 10 girls and Jeff. It was in January and he wore shorts and brought a New Kids on the Block pillowcase, just to prove that he had it.

Nicest thing he has ever done: He planned a Sweet Sixteen Birthday party for me.

Nicest thing she has ever done: When I had surgery she stayed and helped my mom take care of me all day, everyday, until I got better.

His most attractive feature: I love his beautiful green eyes.

Her most attractive feature: Her hair, it was the first thing I ever noticed about her.

Most annoying part of relationship: It's probably when I don't understand what she is thinking, where she is coming from, or what made her upset.

Most romantic thing he has ever done: He pinned me.

Most romantic thing she has ever done: For highschool graduation, Kristy made me a scrap book about my entire high school career.

Couple: Chelsey Cindric & Bob Link

First date: "We went to dinner at Union Jacks. I felt nervous and excited." - Chelsey

Nicest thing he has ever done: He gave me flowers for no special reason.

Nicest thing she has ever done: She bought me dinner after I finished my internship.

His most attractive feature: I love his smile and his laugh.

Her most attractive feature: It's her curly hair... yep definitely her hair.

Most annoying part of relationship: Chelsey is a pharmacy major so it is hard to find extra time to spend together doing fun things.

Most romantic thing he has ever done: He took me to Benihana's on Valentine's Day.

Most romantic thing she has ever done: She made me cookies and didn't burn them.

Couple: Jason Leet & Amanda Weiss

First date: We ate dinner at the Aristocrat and talked about our study abroad experiences. We were both excited because we had been friends since our freshman year.

Nicest thing he has ever done: He's always nice, but the nicest thing about Jason is that he is a good listener.

Nicest thing about her: She's always laughing and happy and that makes me laugh.

Most annoying part of relationship: We are both so busy. The worst part was when Jason was taking the Becker Preparation Class for the CPA Exam.

Most romantic thing they have done together: We went walking along the canal downtown. It's really romantic there.

Couple: Karen Sells & John Bonnell

First date: We went to see the movie "Just Cause" and then hung out in John's basement. We were both nervous, and we arrived at the movie about a half hour before it started."

Nicest thing he has ever done: He let me show him my childhood home (twice) and he met all of my old teachers, because he knew it was important to me.

Nicest thing she has ever done: She took me to the circus on my birthday because she knew I used to go when I was little, as a tradition.

His most attractive feature: His eyes and his freckles are great but his most attractive characteristic is his optimism.

Her most attractive feature: Her big brown eyes and her intelligence are the most attractive.

Most annoying part of relationship: Sometimes we lack creativity in finding new, things to do.

Most romantic thing he has ever done: On our first anniversary he took me to dinner at the Bubble Room, a restaurant in Florida. He drove me out to Captiva Island and we walked on the beach and watched the sunset.

Most romantic thing she has ever done: Sometimes she takes me on picnics. We like to lie on our backs and look at the clouds.

Couple: Rosanne Cull & Mike Ososki

First date: We went paddle-boating downtown and out to dinner. Then we rented a movie on the way home because we were having such a great time. It was a great first date.

Nicest thing he has ever done: He brought me roses before a pharmacy cluster to put her in a good mood while she was studying.

Nicest thing she has ever done: I like to do a lot of little things for him. Sometimes I'll surprise him with a cup of coffee when he studies or a note in his mailbox telling him how much he means to me.

His most attractive feature: It's usually his patience. He puts up with me. What can I say? I'm a handful.

Her most attractive feature: Her smile and her laugh.

Most annoying part of relationship: We are extremely moody!! But it never seems to be at the same time. Go figure.

Most romantic thing he has ever done: Mike took me to the symphony at Connor Prairie. He packed a picnic dinner, and we had a great time.

Couple: Jen Hubertz & Scott Alvey

First date: I went to a Butler/Purdue basketball game with Scott and his brother. But our first real date was when he took me out to dinner and gave me roses.

Nicest thing he has ever done: He came and found me in the computer lab at midnight just so we could see me that day.

Nicest thing she has ever done: She brings me candy before my pharmacy clusters.

His most attractive feature: I think his curly hair and his eyes tie for the most attractive feature.

Her most attractive feature:

Most annoying part of relationship: Honestly... There's nothing really annoying about us.

"Yeah, can I get at least three beers here?"
"Sure, how nice of you to get a couple for your friends."
"Friends?"

Whoops, how did that get in there? Ok, so this wasn't taken during Senior Week. Heck, it wasn't even taken during second semester. Oh well. Good 'buds Andrew Jones and Robb Minich pose for a quick photoop. At least they're seniors.

In front of the courts at Louisville Tennis-team mates take some time out of their day to pose for a few publicity photos.

"This racket good!"
says Junior Sarah Karges as she examines her racket mid-volley. Looks like there's an RV party taking place behind the match too.

"Bring it on!" says Senior Emily Folt during a Freshman Skits dance.

She likes to move it, move it! Sophomore Michelle O'Brien makes her body into a 'K' while on the Hinkle main court.

Go!
 Mick Mramer holds Leigh Ann Gerber atop his shoulders during the National Invitational Tournament basketball game in Hinkle Fieldhouse.

Blue!
 Tim Krull holds Shannon Anderson on his shoulders while yelling "Blue" really loud.

Rebels

Cheerleader Revolution!
 This year the cheerleaders fought back. They'd had it up to here and they weren't going to take it anymore. Thus, the Cheerleader Revolution began.
 The cheerleaders decided they were no longer going to cheer at Butler events because of a coaching decision that Butler made. The cheerleaders were not pleased with this decision, and therefore walked. However, the cheerleaders did attend many events before their strike. The Cheerleader Union also reached an agreement with Butler and cheerleaders were once again heard yelling at Butler sporting events.

Barry's Bad Dawgs
 The cheerleaders stand in front of the Barry's Bad Dawgs cheering section disabling the first two rows of fans from viewing the game.

'Kick that ball!'
 Yell Butler cheerleaders at Butler soccer game at Kuntz Stadium. Mostly cheerleaders at a soccer game.

Top Dawgs

The IMC members of Phi Kappa Psi display their Top Dawg Team trophy while being congratulated by members Kelly Nibel and her assistant Erin. The Top Dawg award is an annual fraternity or housing unit that wins the most events and earns the most points from every IM event throughout the year. The female award was awarded to the women of Alpha Chi Omega.

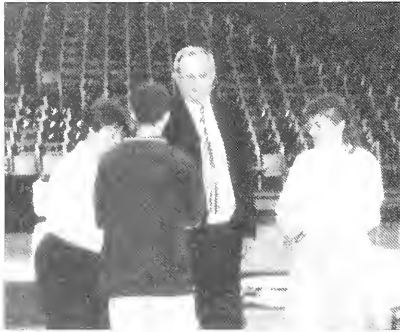

Here's the pitch

A member of the ResCo Commuter IM softball team pitches during an IM softball game at the IM fields. IMIMIM

Individual Top Dawg Scott Alvey of Phi Kappa Psi receives his award from Kelly Nibel during the Butler All-sports awards banquet. Alpha Phi Becky Callahan received the women's award.

Disclaimer: Squirrels are living creatures, too, and they have a right to be heard. I am also including delusions of grandeur and talking to someone (although no one else is here) from working on 100 pages of this yearbook alone. Yes, the schizophrenic warning signs are all present. "Hello," is this Charter.

Disclaimer 2: Any names or faces used that resemble actual people are mere coincidences and in no way are meant to represent the opinions of people that might have the same name or faces as the fictitious ones used.

Plentiful

Squirrels

Local squirrels voice their opinions on campus issues, life, and about being a squirrel in general.

"I love the campus benches. Everywhere I go I can find one. There must be a million of them!" commented Biz the Squirrel.

"Sometimes you have to accept the bad, but focus on the good. Sure, Butler is a small campus, but it has a lot to offer for everyone, even us squirrels. I think Jorge Luis Borges explained it best by saying 'Nothing is built on stone; all is built on sand, but we must build as if the sand were stone.' So go start building things with whatever sand you can find. I have a real furry tail." Fred the squirrel.

"Being a squirrel on Butler's campus isn't so bad, although sometimes I can't find a quiet place to sleep. I can climb up trees sideways, too," commented Squeaky Squirrel.

"Sometimes, when the squirrels aren't looking, I like to sneak up behind them and jump on for a ride, until they buck me off like a bull would to a cowboy. You're probably wondering how I practice for such an enthralling event, well that's where this here stuffed reindeer comes into the picture" explained a fictitious student that resembles 4th year pharmacy major, Rosanne Cull.

"Damn squirrels!" commented a local swan.

Big Willy Style Freshman Will Barnhart visits the Kappa house looking for little Kappa Love, and instead gets an entire makeover. That's a good look for you, 'Willy'.

"Where's my drinking cup?" asks sophomore Jenny Seales. If you don't know Jenny, we're not telling you.

U.B.D. (Unidentified Band Drummer) This band drummer went unidentified the entire year. So whoever you are & wherever you may be, remember to keep smiling & banging those drums (but lose the little feather thing on the hat)

Happy Pierre

Silly Pierre

Constipated Pierre

Angry Pierre

Covert Pierre

But we still haven't figured out what exactly Pierre is doing, but since we have these classic photos in this year's collection and didn't want to go to waste, the Drift staff decided to make an emotional line, in dedication to senior Pierre Ruffin's hand-sign "dance"

Enjoying their last week
Seniors Kelli Hendrickson, Katherine Sloan, & John Messner live it up during Senior Week

"Are you talking to me?"
Yearbook advisor David Clark tells his computer who's in charge.

Block Party
Meg Prunty (back right) talks to Karen Kolks about the upcoming school year during Block Party.

Slip n' slide
Junior Seth Cockrum slide, slide, slippety slides on the Teke front lawn.

Makin' his move.
Junior Jeremy Stutsman makes his move on an unsuspecting Maja Walters.

They can groove. Freshmen Heather Castle & Becky Butler show their moves on the dance platform.

Almost home. A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma travels across the Schwitzer lawn.

All alone. A member of the women's volleyball team stands alone, next to a trash can.

Sophomore Chad Stegemiller gives a tour of campus to tuture Butler treshmen.

Seniors

Mr. Butler Senior Cutler Armstrong proudly displays his "Mr. Butler" banner on the ResCo balcony.

"It smells so good!" says Scott Beier to Pat Broccolo of the wonderful smelling flower they both shared.

Not the Phi house! Although it looks exactly like the Alpha Phi house, it is definitely not a Senior house party in one of the rooms of the Alpha Phi house.

"Come here, baby!" says Josh Masariu to Emily Glattefer while dancing atop the Indianapolis Indians' dugout. The dancing couple lost the competition to Seniors Sam Strohl & Kim Kutska.

"And the winners are ..." Ambra Haake & Lori Klasing prepare to announce the winners of the Delta Gamma Anchor Splash.

Are all of those yours? A group of Lambda Chi seniors live it up at Victory Field during the second night of Senior Week.

"This shower is okay." says bathroom inspector Andy Dillingham during his inspection of the Alpha Phi bathrooms.

Senior Mike Pflugner finishes his walk across the stage during Commencement to officially become a graduate and an alumni.

"Hello...Hello...Hello!" Peter Bower, Billy Bradley, & Pat Broccolo imitate the Three Stooges as they head out of the West Gym in the direction of the main floor of Hinkle during Commencement.

"Finally, my diploma!" thinks a Butler graduate after 4 years of hard work at Butler.

Two female students sunbathe on a beautiful spring day on the immaculately manicured lawn located between the Residential College and the Atherton Student Union which, as we all know, is a very commonly filled with students occupying their time with fun and recreational activities including such sports as Ultimate Frisbee and ... um , well just Frisbee.

Anyone who isn't confused really doesn't understand the situation.

Love makin' music (l to r) Dan Dyer, Vincent Jackson, & Robert Coates fill the typical silence of a Sunday afternoon with their unique percussion methods.

Andy Backs and Greg Weitekamp skate the night away during a social event sponsored by one of the student groups on campus. The cup, by the way, is NOT filled with sweet, delicious beer -- the very nectar of the Gods.

A witty saying proves nothing.

Underclassmen

"Hey, let's stand on the side of the road" says Junior Andrea McClain to Carolyn Redar.

Ohwhat, wow! She's the greatest dancer! Freshman Katie Kurtz performs her "Strike dance" during a Cosmic Bowling night out.

We be Clubbin'! Julie Howard & Brian Rock brave the possibility of food poisoning and eat food at the C-club.

Judgement Day! Phi Psi pledges rate the sorority pledge classes during Freshman Skits held in the Reilly Room.

Whiff! The ball is at the far right of the photo, yet Heather Clunie is still swinging at a non-existent ball. Looks like a whiff to the Drift staff.

Go protect and serve or something! Members of IPD take time out of their busy days to play cards and drink soda with students on the ResCo balcony. (I feel safe)

Hittin' the weights. Junior John Watkins works out with the new free weights in the Atherton Fitness Center.

"Hey, are those the tests answers for the final exam?" says the Butler guy standing behind two Butler girls.

Not Happy. Two Schwitzer ladies who were not very appreciative about having their picture taken scurry away after speaking profanities to the camera person Abstaining from parties, working all weekend, concentrating on nothing but getting out a stellar yearbook, we came to be called...

The Drift staff

Well, ok... so we drank all weekend, did nothing but party, and rarely if ever even remembered that 'yearbook thing'... only at the end of the year did a distressed David Clark (our administrative advisor) manage to instill some sense of urgency to our efforts. (That's not entirely true; Tara was a consistent photographer, and Chad never, ever let the Editors-in-chief forget that things weren't getting done -- foretelling tales of doom that almost equaled a certain person's -- we'll call him "Jeff" -- also never let us forget). All in all, however, this was the year of procrastination; and we were proud to take it to a new level. We were also proud that, despite the fact, this yearbook still sucks a whole helluva' lot less than last year's.

(left to right) Robb Mimich, the mysterious Swamp Creature, and Chad Martin pretend to edit some copy that really they just held up to pretend like they were doing something. Immediately following the picture they brought the kegs back out, and the ladies of the evening came back into the room. Oh, then Missy and Tara and Roxy came back, too.

(Clockwise from top) Chad Martin, Tara Deters, and Robb Kish pick out photos; Tara, Chad, Missy Yates, and Robb Munch after a long night of drinking (uh... just those of us that were 21); Missy Yates thinks up some more captions that Martin and Munch will end up tossing anyhow; the entire group huddles around the Butler Bulldog.

...And so, like sands through the hourglass (uh.... what?), those were the days of our lives. Though the days of college ended with the year of 1999 for some, and were only the beginning of a college career for others, the experiences were the same for everyone: Ultimately, unforgettable. The task of creating a portrait that accurately captures the entirety of such a time is impossible, but with this in mind, the Drift has still strived to do as much as possible. There are many things that have changed on the small campus of Butler University even in the course of this year; for the seniors, the differences are even greater. The college experience is not what it used to be; but then again, the college experience in even five years will not be what it was for us. The currents of time swirl on with or without us; whether or not we choose to ride out the rapids lies in our own hands.

Dedicated to the Class of 1999.

The Beginning...
